The Liberian Women's Chorus for Change is a Philadelphia-based choir composed of Liberian refugees who use traditional songs to foster dialogue and have a positive impact on social issues – such as gender-based violence, women's empowerment in the immigrant community, along with post-conflict reconciliation. Their documentary "Because of the War" will be shown, followed by a discussion with the film's director, cultural anthropologist Toni Shapiro Phim, and the lead of the chorus, Fatu Gayflor.
